A WOMAN'S EXECUTION, PARIS, MAY, 1871.

BY EDWARD KING.

Sweet-breathed and young—
The people's daughter;
No nervous straining—
Going to slaughter!

"Good morning, friends!
You'll love us better—
Make us amends;
We've burst your fetter!"

"How the sun gleams!
(Women are smiling);
Give me your brains,
Liberty's darling!"

"Marie's my name—
Christ's mother bore it!
That badge? No shame;
Glad that I wore it!"

(Hair to her waist;
Limbs like a Venus;
Robes are displaced);
"Soldiers! please screen us!"

"He at the front?
That is my lover;
Stood all the brand;
Now the fight's over."

"Powder and bread
Gave out together,
Drill to be dead
In this bright weather!"

"Jenn, boy! we might
Have married in June!
This wall? Right!
Vive la Commune!"

Scriber's for September.

Laughable Story.

Don Platt, in the Capital, tells the following laughable story of the roasting of a corpse:
Lord, how I did laugh at old Dean, father of Julia Dean, one night. He was playing that funny old king to Booth's Richard, one infernal cold night in Buffalo. When Booth stabbed him, the awkward old duffer fell flat on the register of the stage. Some devil of an actor seeing this, ran down and told the wild Irishman at the furnace that everybody was freezing on the stage—to rush up the fires. We who were in the secret watched the result. First the dead king broke into a profuse perspiration while Richard was delivering his long soliloquy. How the dead king did sweat! But, as the fire increased, he began to wiggle and squirm. The audience was startled to see the body quiver and the legs give little post mortem kicks not in accordance with the text. We could hear him mutter to Richard:
"Hurry up, cuss it, hurry up! I'm roasting here!"

But Richard continued rolling out his heavy thunder as slow and deliberately as if his royal highness were resting on a bed of roses. At last, when he had groaned out, "Down, down to hell and say I sent thee thither!" his departing majesty rose up and walked off the stage, rubbing his back as if he felt ridiculous, to the utter amazement of the audience. By this time the corpse was on the occasion. Striking an attitude he roared out:
Can such things be,
And overcome us like a summer cloud,
Without our special wonder?
Don got a black eye and a broken nose while attempting to kick the Irishman.

Beautiful Ireland.

We know, of course, that Ireland is called the "Emerald Isle," and the color of the emerald is green, but never had it entered into our imagination that there was anywhere in this world to be seen such verdure as I claimed our eyes to look upon in the rural districts of Ireland. The slopes, the knolls, the dells, fields of young grain, over which the breezes creep like playful spirits of the beautiful; the pastures, dotted over with sheep of the purest wool; the hillsides, rising up into mist-shrouded mountains, are all covered with thick carpets of smooth, velvet green. But Ireland should also be called Flowery Isle. There is not a spot in Ireland, I believe, where blessed nature can find an excuse for putting a flower, but she has put one—not only in the gardens and in the meadows, but upon the very walls and the crags of the sea, from the great blooming rhododendrons, down to the smallest flower that modestly peeps forth from its grassy cover. The Irish furze, so richly yellow, covers all places that might otherwise be bare or barren, the silkworm delights everywhere, from thousands of trees, to drop its "web of gold;" the blooming hawthorn, with the sweet-scented pink, and especially the white variety, adorns the landscape and the gardens; wall-flowers, of every hue and variety, clamber to hide the harshness of the mural supports; the beetled cliffs of the North sea are tinged and softened with lovely flowers; and if you kneel anywhere almost on the yielding, velvety carpet, you will find little, well-nigh invisible flowers, red, white, blue and yellow, wrought into the very wool and texture. Ireland ought to be called the Beautiful Isle. The spirit of the beautiful hovers over and touches to living loveliness every point.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Very recently Martha Walker, a young Englishwoman, climbed the famous Matterhorn, over 14,700 feet high, in company with her father, aged sixty-five years. The Matterhorn is one of the most difficult of all the Alpine peaks to ascend, and has rarely been attempted by a woman. The lady is well named, having climbed Monts. Blanc, Rosa, and other peaks with little fatigue.

Exciting Encounter with a Female Grizzly.

While at Monterey last week, says the Castroville of August 5th, we met Ed. Logwood, and were furnished by him with the following particulars of an encounter that he and his brother Joseph had with a grizzly bear about three weeks ago. The locality where it took place is in the mountains about thirty miles south of Monterey, in what is known as the "Pescadero" district, beyond the head of Carmel Valley. The grizzly had killed a cow of Ed's one night, within about three hundred yards of the house, and dragged the carcass into a dry creek bed, where it was found the second day after. The night following, Joseph took his station in a tree close by to watch for the bear, and during the night got a shot at it, only succeeding, however, in breaking one of its forelegs. Next morning both brothers started out on horseback, and followed the trail of blood from the wounded limb about a mile up the ravine, at which point a grizzly cub, about four months old, rushed out of the brush; and was dispatched forthwith. A very short distance beyond, Ed, being in the advance, discovered the enemy, who, gaining sight of her human foes only about thirty feet off, immediately made a furious charge upon them. Ed, pulled the trigger of his double-barreled shot-gun, but the gun snapped, and by the time he could fire the other barrel the bear was rearing up in the face of his mare. The latter made a fearful bound to one side, diverting Ed's aim so that though the bear was blinded by the flash and smoke, the balls with which the gun was loaded only hit her in one of her hind feet. The jump of the mare threw her rider just as he fired, right in front of the now thoroughly infuriated bear, which, luckily blinded and bewildered by the explosion and being under full headway, ran it over him at Joe, who was close behind. He turned his horse as she came, and stunned her with a pistol shot in the head, but not before she tore off the hind part of his saddle with one stroke of her snout and fore-paw, and by her charge completely demoralized his horse, which soon placed a respectable distance between himself and the enemy. Ed, had by this time convinced himself that he was not killed (although rendered very suspicious that he was by the bloody smearing he had received as the bear rushed over him), and hatless, gunless, and horseless, beat a retreat instant to join Joe on a rocky cliff about seventy yards from which a view of the wounded and prostrate foe could be had with safety. A council of war resulted in his starting off afoot for reinforcements, leaving Joe as a detachment of cavalry, to "sort of skirmish around" and watch the enemy. Opportune reinforcements in the shape of a hunter with a rifle were met about a half mile off, and from the top of the cliff mentioned, that he was soon loaded up, and led enough to make it a cold corpse of some six or seven hundred pounds weight.

Ed, expresses himself as perfectly satisfied that Joe saved his life, but does not desire particularly that Joseph shall again be called upon to do so under like circumstances. It was certainly a narrow escape and a singularly fortunate one for both men.

The manufacture of sassafras oil has been conducted for the past two years in Richmond, Va., on an extensive scale, by a firm of colored persons. And since the establishment of this factory, similar establishments have been started along the railroads at various points throughout Virginia. At the factory in Richmond the sassafras-root is purchased at the rate of 30 cents per 100 pounds, and the collectors, it is stated, have, in some instances, made $2 a day by the sale of raw material, to the establishment. The machinery uses up 10,000 pounds of the sassafras root in a week, or 10,000 pounds a day, the still only working four days in the week. The oil manufactured amounts to 2 per cent of the stock used, 800 pounds of unrefined oil being made from 40,000 pounds of the root. This quantity is further reduced by rectification and cleansing from sediment and impurity. A gallon of fine oil weighs ten pounds, and forty gallons are produced every week. It is largely used for scenting toilet soap and for flavoring tobacco.

MEDICAL PRESCRIPTION.—Some of the New York physicians are as intelligent as some of the quacks which drift out upon the afflicted country from the city. A physician from Binghamton recently issued the following prescription to one of his victims:
Fifteen Kramps—Tinct. kamfir, woz. oz.
Tinct. Lodenium, a little.
Tinct. hot-drops, a few drops.
Tinct. kivan pepper, 5 cts. worth.
Koreform, a little, but not much, as it is a dangerous medicine.
Dose, half a teaspoonful, when the kramps come on.

A Cleveland paper propounds a canon-drum after this fashion: "Miss Smith was married to Mr. Jones recently, while she held the office of postmistress. The question is, 'Who held the office after the ceremony was performed?' Certainly not Miss Smith, for there was no longer Miss Smith. And certainly not Mrs. Jones, for no such postmaster was known to the department."

THE TRI-WEEKLY YEOMAN.

SATURDAY - SEPTEMBER 16, 1871.

LEXINGTON RACES. To-day. We are glad to see that it has been so arranged by the railroad company that the regular evening train, which leaves Lexington at 1:40, will not leave this afternoon until four o'clock; thereby allowing all persons who desire to witness one of the greatest contests ever before presented on the American turf and return the same day. Longfellow, Foster, Nellie Gray, Pilgrim, Morgan Scout, Exchange, and Beulah, all are noted as the fleetest horses of America. They are all represented as being in good condition, and the reputation to be gained by winning the race will be world-wide, and a hard contest may be expected.

From friends lately from the South we learn that the prospect for the cotton crop has grown much less favorable within the last few weeks. In Arkansas a burning drought has dried up the plant in many counties almost like frost, thus cutting off what is known as the top crop, or later growth of bolls. Upon the Arkansas river, where till lately the promise was very fine, the water has appeared, and is doing great havoc as high up as Pine Bluff, it being the first time it ever was known to make its appearance thereabouts. The worm is also doing great damage in the bottom lands of Louisiana, Mississippi, and Alabama, while the hill crop generally is very light from drought. Picking is going on briskly, and mudding which is the grade commonly secured before frost, brings twenty-one cents.

A STRANGE COINCIDENCE.—A circumstance rather startling in its nature, says the Lexington Press of yesterday, regarding the Harper murder, was made known to us yesterday. We were informed by Mr. Frank Harper that the wife of Wallace Harper dreamt the Saturday night before the murder, that Jake and Miss Betsy were both killed by a negro man and a boy, and that the man had long whiskers. The description given of the man answers exactly to that of Tom Baker, one of the negroes arrested upon suspicion of complicity in the murder. This is very strange, but what seems the strangest is, that the horrid picture should have haunted the dreams of a lady relative of the deceased only a day before his murder. We are not given to superstition or inclined to attach importance to dreams, but if this one was made known before the murder, we think it one of the most remarkable occurrences in modern times.

INEXCUSABLE CARELESSNESS.—We have heard complaints lately from the citizens of Bell Point, concerning the firing of pistols and guns by persons opposite that place on this side of the river and without the city limits, and from other points on the other side of the river. In several instances houses have been fired into—not intentionally, but at the imminent risk of the lives of the inmates. Only yesterday, the daughter of Wade Dawson narrowly escaped being killed by a ball discharged from a small cannon by a thoughtless boy nine or ten years old. The boy was on this side of the river, and probably he never thought of endangering the life of any one on the other. We are told that not only boys are in the habit of using fire arms carelessly in that portion of the city, but frequently grown persons, thinking that they are out of the stir and bustle of the business part of the city, they endanger no one's life, and discharge their arms. All should be more thoughtful; parents should watch their children; and if it is not stopped, the officers should see that it was.

JEWISH HOLIDAY.—The Jewish new year—5532—begins to-day. It is observed by the Israelites throughout the world as a holiday. The succeeding ten days to the day of atonement are observed by religious services.

LOST.—On the 12th inst., between the Capital and Southern Hotels, a coral and gold breast-pin. The finder will please leave it at the Yeoman office, and be suitably rewarded.

LOST.—Between the Misses Smith's school and the Episcopal Church, a black ribbon sash. The finder will be liberally rewarded by leaving it at the Misses Smith's.

THE GRAND GIFT ENTERPRISE.—The Louisville Public Library scheme, whose advertisement will be found elsewhere, offers unusual advantages to those who propose to invest in such ventures. The details of the drawing, which is to take place on the 31st of October, are all under the management of Mr. Charles R. Peters, whose successful management of the drawing of the San Francisco Library Association has made him famous. Some of the most prominent and reliable citizens of Louisville vouch for the fair and impartial conduct of the whole scheme, and under this guarantee the sale of tickets, we learn, is very encouraging. For the time of drawing, price of tickets, &c., see the advertisement.

A number of fishermen may be seen on the drift pile, and the river bank daily. They do not glut the market by their success, but Frankfort people will wet their lines if they never hook anything.

EXECUTOR'S SALE.—D. Meriwether, executor, will sell, on the 17th, near Christianburg, Shelby county, the entire personality of the late Richard Meriwether. Terms, &c., will be found in another column of the Yeoman.

CIRCUIT JUDGE.—By reference to the proceedings of this committee, it will be seen that a convention has been called to nominate a candidate for judge in this district.

AID TO THE GOVERNOR.—The Governor has commissioned Al. Bourlier, of Louisville, one of his aids, with the rank of Colonel.

The examining trial of the negroes arrested for the killing of Jake Harper, took place at Versailles yesterday.

"VEN DE VEDDER IS HOT."
During the late heated term, the following incident occurred in one of our principal drug stores:
One day while the proprietor was in that semi-dreamy state superinduced by excessive heat and a hearty dinner, a well-known German entered, and addressed him thus:
"Doctor, I want to buy von dem dings vot makes de vedder hot."
"You are in the wrong place," said the doctor, "if you want a stove. This is a drug store."
"No! no! no! the reply; 'I want one of dem dings vot tells how hot de vedder is.'"
"Ah!" said the doctor; "you want a thermometer."
"Yah, a thermometer, das ish it."
The doctor produced a thermometer, and, on request, proceeded to show how to tell "ven de vedder is hot." He explained the different stages of temperate, summer heat, blood heat, boiling, &c., to the satisfaction of his customer, who then remarked:
"Now, doctor, I want to know how to tell ven de vedder is cold."
The doctor then explained the lower scale of the thermometer—the freezing point, zero, &c. Upon concluding, the enlightened Teuton, highly gratified with the instruction he had received, said:
"Vell, doctor, I takes two dermometers—von to dell ven de vedder is hot, and von to dell ven de vedder is cold."

THE INTELLIGENT SOW.—A day or two since, as a large sow was being driven down Main street, she evinced a love of both pleasure and business. Arriving at the corner of Ann street, her swiftness entered the saloon of Con. McCauliffe, and having slaked her thirst, she repaired to the post-office for her mail. Having attended to that important business, she returned to pleasure, and repaired to Ger. Bahr's billiard saloon, dismounted Jack, and resumed the street. She was next attracted by the handsome store-room of Waggener's, where she visited, probably to order her fall dresses. She was so pleased with either Waggener's treatment or the house, that she seemed loth to leave, and evidently intended to make herself at home, and proceeded to a bed room in the second story. When last seen her swiftness was being conveyed from the city comfortably lying on her side, with all four feet fastened together with a rope.

A strange freak of nature has taken place in the track of a severe hailstorm that occurred in the region of Rockingham county, Va., some three weeks ago. It is this: That all the orchards in the track of the hailstorm have come out in full bloom as they ever were in the spring. Not only the apples are in bloom, but the least trees in many places are also in bloom. A gentleman saw a tree with several bushels of ripe apples, with thousands of blossoms on the same tree. A very pretty but a strange sight.

An exchange quotes the New Orleans Picayune as wanting its readers to prepare for the great tidal wave, which, according to the calculation of a profound astronomer, is to sweep over the whole ocean coast from Hatteras to Bahia, to the height of fifty feet or more, on the night of the 5th of October, or on the morning of the 6th. This wave if it comes, will put about all of Florida and a large portion of Louisiana under water. It is the prediction of Agassiz, and is very important if true.

Wood's Household Magazine, published at Newburg, New York, will be furnished to publishers for clubbing purposes, at 50 cents per year, the amount always to accompany the addresses; or the Pocket Magazine and Magazine to the same address one dollar. But these terms are limited to publishers who announce in their columns the terms on which they club with our magazine. 75 cents must accompany every name obtained by other means.

A sad scene occurred on Tuesday in the French cathedral, in Montreal. A rich American lady, widow of Dr. Connolly, who a short time ago in New York, murdered his two children in a fit of insanity and then committed suicide, became a raving maniac in the midst of church services. She suddenly shrieked in a frightful manner, and was, with difficulty removed. Since her husband's tragic end, Mrs. Connolly has shown frequent signs of mental aberration, of which this is the culmination.

Much interest is felt in the meeting of both branches of the Presbyterian Church in Kentucky at Danville, on the 11th of October. The question of compromise as to the Center College property will be discussed.

DON'T LIKE THE BEAST.—A Washington special to the Cincinnati Gazette says: Well informed persons just from Massachusetts do not speak very hopefully of the prospects there, so far as the gubernatorial nomination is concerned. It is stated that Butler will have a large number of delegates in the convention, and by dint of hard work may possibly secure the nomination. In this contingency it is proposed by respectable Republicans to nominate a third man, and run him as the regular candidate of the Republican party, thus utterly ignoring Butler.

"VEN DE VEDDER IS HOT."
During the late heated term, the following incident occurred in one of our principal drug stores:
One day while the proprietor was in that semi-dreamy state superinduced by excessive heat and a hearty dinner, a well-known German entered, and addressed him thus:
"Doctor, I want to buy von dem dings vot makes de vedder hot."
"You are in the wrong place," said the doctor, "if you want a stove. This is a drug store."
"No! no! no! the reply; 'I want one of dem dings vot tells how hot de vedder is.'"
"Ah!" said the doctor; "you want a thermometer."
"Yah, a thermometer, das ish it."
The doctor produced a thermometer, and, on request, proceeded to show how to tell "ven de vedder is hot." He explained the different stages of temperate, summer heat, blood heat, boiling, &c., to the satisfaction of his customer, who then remarked:
"Now, doctor, I want to know how to tell ven de vedder is cold."
The doctor then explained the lower scale of the thermometer—the freezing point, zero, &c. Upon concluding, the enlightened Teuton, highly gratified with the instruction he had received, said:
"Vell, doctor, I takes two dermometers—von to dell ven de vedder is hot, and von to dell ven de vedder is cold."

AN OLD RELIC COME TO LIGHT.—A short time since, as the workmen were engaged in digging the foundation for Holmes & Pearce's new store, in Mt. Olivet, Robertson county, they struck some seven or eight feet apart—the top of each being two feet from the surface of the ground. Continuing their labors, the workmen found at the bottom of one of these pits a stone about one foot square, bearing this inscription, in plain, but roughly carved letters, viz: "D. B. 1775." Now, as Daniel Boone was wont to go to these settlements, years ago, it is not at all unlikely that the initials are meant for him, though the stone was certainly not placed there to mark his last resting-place, even though the position of the two pits indicates a grave. But what was the stone doing at the foot of the post? And how came the posts to be two feet from the surface of the earth? And if it was a grave, why were there not some signs of a coffin? And—what does it all mean anyhow? We pause for a reply. Who knows? The posts had evidently been buried for time without reckoning, for exposure to the light they at once crumbled to dust.—Carlisle Mercury.

The Press at the Bourbon Fair

The Western Citizen of Tuesday says:
The press was well represented at our fair last week. The following are the names of the gentlemen as far as we have learned: Enoch Jacobs, Cincinnati Commercial; F. W. Staggman, Cincinnati Enquirer; W. H. Polk, Cincinnati Gazette; Joseph Pauly, Cincinnati Volksfreund; Thomas Kelly, Louisville Commercial; J. W. Hopper, Lebanon Standard; L. P. Tarleton, Lexington Statesman; A. Maydwell, Lexington Press; G. R. Keller, Cincinnati Democrat; Thomas Martin, Paducah Kentuckian.

These gentlemen met in one of the booths last Friday evening after organizing, with E. Jacobs, Esq., of the Cincinnati Commercial, in the chair, and G. R. Keller secretary.

A committee, consisting of the following named gentlemen, were appointed to draft resolutions: J. W. Hopper, S. P. Tarleton, and F. W. Staggman.
The following resolutions explain themselves:
Resolved, That we, the representatives of the press at the Bourbon County fair, hereby order our thanks to the president of the association, Brutus J. Clay, Esq., the secretary, J. A. Howerton, the treasurer, B. F. Pullen, Esq., and the other officers of the Bourbon County Association for the courtesy and numerous acts of kindness received at their hands during their present exhibition, and to the people of Paris and Bourbon county in general, and the ladies in particular, for the generous and lavish hospitality shown us during our stay in their midst.

Resolved, That the members of the press from abroad gratefully acknowledge the courteous attentions bestowed upon them by the members of the press of Paris.

A HIGH FALL.—A man fell from the railroad bridge on Licking river down to the water below, a distance of sixty-five feet, and did not receive the slightest injury. He could not have been protected by the water, which was only a foot deep.

FAIR.—The negroes have been holding a fair in Mr. Hart's woods, near Versailles, since Tuesday.

A Touching Story.

The New Orleans Picayune tells the following: "Shortly after the close of the war, Mrs. Beach, living near Carrollton, went insane. The cause of her derangement was attributed to the loss of her husband in one of the numerous conflicts in Virginia. Notwithstanding the unsound condition of her mind, she went about her daily duties as usual, and had several children (she had two, a boy and girl), and sewing for their support. It was only in conversation that her infirmity was apparent, and her utter aversion to society. Naturally weak and delicate in her organization, her overtaxed strength gave way under the arduous work she performed, and day by day her thin pale face grew more emaciated, and her soft and silent footsteps drew nearer and nearer to the grave. But to all inquiries of friends about her health, she would shake her head and say, 'I'm well; I can't die; who would care for my little ones?' The sad lonely life of the woman excited compassion, but she would take no aims. She toiled early and late. But not a great while since she died, a gentle rain falling, a short distance from her, and when he arrived said to him: 'I am going to die now; my children are provided for.' In less than two days she was dead, and contemporaneous with the fact came the intelligence that, by the death of an uncle, her children had become heirs to a large fortune in Maryland."

People are never too old to learn, as notable examples in all ages have proved. For instance: Cato, the censor, was an old man when he taught himself Greek. Michael, at seventy years of age, said "I am still learning." Milton, in his blindness, when past fifty, sat down to complete his "Paradise Lost." Scott, at fifty-five, took up his pen to redeem an enormous liability. Benjamin West, was sixty-four when he commenced his series of paintings, one of which is "Christ Healing the Sick." John Kemble wrote out Hamlet thirty times, and said on quitting the stage, "I am now beginning to understand my art." Mrs. Siddons, after she left the stage, was found studying Latin, Malchuk, and said, "I was amazed to discover some new points in the character which I never found out while acting it."

BALL EXTRACTED.—On last Saturday Dr. F. M. Cannon extracted an ounce ball from the thigh of Mr. Jno. H. Shropshire, where it had been lodged since the battle of Bethel Church, Georgia, which took place on the 1st of December, 1864. The ball had been a source of great trouble and greatly impaired his health. His old Confederate associates will be gratified to learn that he will soon recover from its effects.—Georgetown Times.

HEAVY WEIGHTS.—Col. D. Howard Smith, Joseph C. Smith, Gano Hill, and J. C. Cravens meeting by chance in this place last week concluded to weigh. They aggregated 961 pounds; average weight 240 1/3 pounds. Col. Smith, the lightest, weighed 195 pounds, Joseph Smith, 225, Gano Hill, 251, and J. C. Cravens, 290.—Georgetown Times.

"The Centrifugal Machine," similar to that used in American sugar refineries and laundries, is now successfully used in France to extract the juice of apples and grapes for the manufacture of cider and wine. The machine is represented as acting more rapidly than the ordinary press, and extracts more juice. Thus with grapes the machine will in two hours do more work than the press in seven, and the juice is all of the same quality, while by the old process only the first running will make wine of the best quality, as the remainder is injured by the contact with the skins and stalks. The same results are obtained in extracting the juice from apples. The motive power necessary to drive the apparatus, if reported, is not as large, as a three-horse engine will give a thousand turns to a minute to an ordinary sized machine.

There is a man out in Wyoming who did not want for woman's wit when forced to do woman's work while his wife was on the jury. He appealed to her to come home, but she wasn't in any particular hurry, and he would now find how nice it was to stay at home and mind the children, while she was loafing around the court-house, as he used to do. "The man went home and hired a good-looking cook, and sent his wife word to be sure and not come home until she wanted to, on his account, but as soon as the news reached her, she bolted immediately, and is now one of the loudest opposers of female suffrage.

A negro woman named Charlotte Rice died out on the ground where the colored fair is being held on Wednesday. A blood vessel burst and she died by bleeding from the mouth in a few minutes. The coroner held an inquest, but the family refused to let the body be opened.—Woodford Weekly.

SIGNS OF THE ZODIAC.—A philosopher in the West grown into admiration of the Cherry Pectoral, writes Dr. Ayer for instructions under which sign he shall be bled, which blistered, and which vomited, and under which he shall take Ayer's Pills for an affection of the liver; also under which sign his wife should commence to take the Sarsaparilla for her ailment. He adds that he already knows to wear his calves under Taurus, change his pigs in Scorpio, cut his hair in Aries, and seek his feet in Pisces or Aquarius as their condition requires.

THE TRI-WEEKLY YEOMAN.

Hadn't Jined 'Em Yet.

A rather verdant young man, whose features exhibited every symptom of having been slightly tinged with emerald, lately entered a jewelry store in New York, and gazing earnestly into the show-case, remarked:

"You've got a heap of mighty pretty brach-pieces thar, mister; what might you ax for 'em?"

"What sort of a pin would you like to look at?" inquired the merchant.

"Well, I dunno!" said the visitor, pointing to a plain Masonic pin (the compass and the square); "how much is that yere?"

"Five dollars, only, sir," was the reply. "It's a very fine pin, eighteen carat gold, and

"You hav'n't got any one with a little gold hand-saw laid across it, hev you?" interrupted the would-be purchaser.

"I believe not," said the merchant.

"Wish yer had, it would suit me exactly, I'm just out of my time, and gwine to set up as a carpenter and joiner, and I thought I'd like some sort of a sign to wear about me so folks would have an idee who I was. What do you ax for that ar you've got yer hand on?"

"Seven dollars, sir," said the merchant, producing a compass and square surrounding the letter G.

"Seven dollars, eh?" said the youth, "I'll take it—sorry yer didn't hav the hand-saw, though, but reckon everybody 'll understand it. The compass to measure out the work, and the square to see it's all right after it's done measured, and everybody order know that G alius stands for gimlet!"

A GENUINE SALAMANDER.—They have down in Maryland a man whom they style the "African Fire King." He gave an exhibition of his "powers" recently in a physician's office in the presence of about twenty persons, and one of them describes the result thus: "He first heated a shovel red hot and applied it to the bottom of one of his feet. It made no impression on him whatever. He next heated a shovel red hot and licked it repeatedly with his tongue. It did not even dry the saliva in his mouth. He then put his hand in a hot stove and took therefrom a red hot anthracite coal and offered it to the spectators, who declined to accept the present. His hand was not even scorched. He then called out to know if there were any 'unbelievers' present. To his astonishment we noticed on each a still an 'unbeliever.' He then put a shovel in the stove and partially filled it with shot; when the shot got pretty hot he stirred them with his naked fingers until the lead had melted. He then took the shovel in his right hand and poured the hot melted lead in his left hand, and then poured the burning solution into his mouth, kept it there until it cooled and spit it out in a lump. We then expressed ourselves entirely satisfied. He said 'that was only a $20 performance; if they would make him up $50 he would show them something worth seeing.'"

A DOG WITNESS.—In England, quite recently, a Newfoundland dog was the subject of dispute, and to settle the question of ownership suit was brought. The defendant, who had possession of the dog, claimed that he was seven years old, was lost in 1867, and recovered in April, 1871. The plaintiff, a widow, on the other hand, contended that the dog was only two years old, and been brought up from infancy by her and her attendant. Both parties swore positively to this state of facts respectively, and appeared to be firmly convinced of the justice of their own cases. The witness, however, of the greatest force and weight, was the dog. By order of the judge, he was brought into court, and, although he had been in the custody of the defendant since April, he evinced the most lively signs of recognition of a personal attendant of the plaintiff, who it is claimed had him under her care when a puppy. The case was summed up, the immense Newfoundland dog, of a jet black color, with white chest and paws, being seated at the side of the justice during the whole time of the delivery of the charge to the jury. Under the charge of the court, the jury found a verdict for the plaintiff, being influenced by the undoubted testimony of the dumb animal.

TOMATOES AS A FEEDING CROP.—Frequently we find in our families among gardeners that the crop of tomatoes is immense and rotting on the ground. We ask why do you leave them thus? The reply is: "Oh, they will not sell for enough to pay for picking and carrying to market." But we say they pay for canning, which, however, is a labor and often inconvenient to be borne by those in the house, and for a small lot of two or ten bushels of fruit it will not pay to erect a separate out-house and cooking appendages. So leave out the canning, let us take the other value of tomatoes and consider them as a variety of food to our domestic animals. Fed to poultry, one peck of ripe tomatoes is as valuable as two quarts of corn, and fed with corn, quantity for quantity, we believe the balance of health gained by the fowls would credit to the tomato. Fed to milk cows, tomatoes will add to the milk equally with the same amount of shorts. Horses eat them greedily, but aside from their tonic healthfulness we do not know there is any special gain, but in that one item the horse usually fed on grain will be benefited to the imparting of renewed vigor, a brighter and softer skin and hair, more than the value of the tomatoes as compared with shorts.

We have often wondered that our milkmen who buy brewers grain, yet have plenty of land, should omit the use of the knowledge that a bushel of tomatoes will insure as much milk when fed to the cow as a bushel of brewer's grain.

TO KEEP THE FEET DRY.—We saw some years ago, in one of the Western papers (the Western Farmer, we think), the following: "Apply castor oil to the boot when dry and soak it by the fire till the leather is saturated. Treat the soles in the same way, being careful to dry in well, so that they will not grease the carpets. We once treated a pair of calf boots in this way, and a few days after we walked five miles in saturated snow and water from six to ten inches deep at every step, and come out with feet perfectly dry. Castor oil will keep the leather soft, pliable and black, though not glossy, and quite impervious to water."

SOAP FOR THE HAIR.—I have heard said that soap has an injurious effect on the hair, and therefore should not be used in washing it. I use besides the usual cold water bath, white castle soap and cold or cool water, as often as I think necessary, being careful to rinse all soap out of the hair afterward. It cleanses the scalp, and seems to have an admirable effect on the hair, making it very clean and pleasant to the touch. Will you give us your opinion on the subject?

The continued use of soap upon the hair will cause it to become harsh and dry. If pure, soft water is not sufficient for cleanliness, occasionally use the white of an egg, well beaten up, and applied to the hair, rubbing it in thoroughly with the fingers. It is much better for the hair and scalp than soap.

HERALD OF HEALTH.

BLUE INK.—Chinese blue, three ounces, oxalic acid (pure), three quarters of an ounce, gum arabic (powdered), one ounce, distilled water, six pints. Mix.

TO CLEAN KNIVES.—Cut a small potato in two; dip one half in brick dust and rub the knives, and rust and stain will disappear like magic from their surfaces.

COLOGNE WATER.—One pint of alcohol, 60 drops of lavender, 60 of bergamot, 60 drops of essence of lemon, 60 drops of orange water. To be corked up and well shaken. It is better for considerable age.

FOUR CALIFORNIA TURNIPS raised near Sonoma weighed eighty pounds. One from the same patch weighed twenty-four pounds.

FOR SALE.

A LARGE & SPLENDID FARM, AND EXTENSIVE AND VARIOUS PERSONAL PROPERTY.

HEALTH REQUIRING ME TO WINTER in Florida, I will sell the Farm on which I reside, containing over seven hundred and eighty acres, situate in Franklin and Woodford Counties, Ky., five miles from Frankfort, on the Railroad to Lexington, and the Turnpike to Versailles, and I can confidently say there is no better farm in Kentucky, all things considered.

The Location is beautiful, convenient, and healthy. The Buildings are elegant, spacious, substantial, and for all appropriate purposes; the Farm being supplied with three other comfortable dwellings and suitable buildings, besides the principal residence.

The Soil was naturally good, and has been kept in a high state of fertility, and is now ready to yield the heaviest crops of hemp, grain, and grasses.

The Water is of all kinds, abundant, and convenient for domestic, stock, and ornamental uses.

The Fencing is of durable materials of various kinds, is in good condition, with timber ample for future supply.

Society is excellent; and religious, educational, and social conveniences abundant and varied.

A Division of the Farm into four parts can be judiciously effected, so that each will have its appropriate dwelling and other buildings; and I will sell separately that part on the north side of the railroad, having superior soil, water, timber, roads, and two sets of buildings, all in good condition.

The Terms will be made easy, after a cash payment of one half of the purchase money at the time of giving possession in October next. Purchasers are invited to inspect the premises in person, or apply by mail for full description.

An Auction Sale will be held on the premises on the 5th of September next, consisting of Durham Cattle, "Improved Kentucky" Sheep, Cashmere Goats, Fattening Hogs, Farm and Saddle Horses, Crops on hand, and Implements of all kinds, which will be duly advertised.
